

Yuppiechef scoops title of SA's Online Retailer of the Year

Yuppiechef triumphed at the inaugural Online Retailer of the Year awards, which recognises online stores in South Africa that grow trust amongst digital shoppers.

The new awards programme is presented by World Wide Worx in partnership with Platinum Seed, Visa, Heavy Chef and the E-commerce Forum of Africa. The awards are part of a broader project to boost online shopping in the country, thereby contributing to the economic growth of South Africa.

“The Online Retail in South Africa 2019 research report released this week shows that retail e-commerce in SA is about to go mainstream,” says Bradley Elliott, founder of Platinum Seed, and co-author of the report. “Online retail will pass the R14 billion mark by the end of this year, commanding 1.4% of total retail. This growth is due in part to massive investments in online retail, aggressive marketing and the rapid uptake of new shopping channels like mobile shopping and Instagram.”

“The good news is that online retail is growing in SA at higher-than-expected rates, exceeding the growth rate of SA retail overall,” says Arthur Goldstuck, managing director of World Wide Worx and principal analyst on the project. “Online retail in SA is likely to reach the psychological barrier of 2% of total retail in the next few years, which generally indicates that the sector will start snowballing, as seen in other developing economies.”

Says Elliott, “With the Online Retailer of the Year awards we want to recognise those e-commerce operations that have helped to grow the entire sector by engendering trust with online shoppers. Research clearly illustrates that trust and customer centricity are the two biggest factors in growing e-commerce in emerging economies.

“Building consumer trust will inevitably lead to growth in the online retail sector.”
