🗱 BIZCOMMUNITY

From the start, it was all about You. And Huisgenoot.

By Stephen Grootes: @StephenGrootes

1 Dec 2010

This year, various ANC politicians have accused the media, and journalists generally, of being skiving gits. Of being people with no moral code, who'll do anything for a story. Of being people who think they are above the law, who don't care about ruining other people's lives.

Unfortunately, a court judgment is now going to give them plenty of ammunition. And worse, the court judgment, from what we can see, is absolutely correct.

It's not a case about politics, or politicians or even a vaguely political journal. But it is about one of the oldest magazines in the country. That's right, it's Huisgenoot. Founded in 1916, it has fed South Africans, along with its English publication You, a diet of celebrity gossip and titillating copy. It's one of the few publications in this country that appears to pay cash money for interviews with newsmakers.

The crime of which it's been convicted on Tuesday, 30 November 2010, by the Supreme Court of Appeal no less, is contempt of court.

Continue reading the full analysis on www.thedailymaverick.co.za.

ABOUT STEPHEN GROOTES: @STEPHENGROOTES

Stephen Grootes is political reporter for Eyewitness News (www.ewn.co.za) and contributing editor for Business Day (www.businessday.co.za). He used to write for The Daily Maverick (www.thedailymaverick.co.za). Follow himon Twitter at @StephenGrootes.

When Twitter met South Africa - a match made in a train smash - 28 Jan 2016

Mandela in hospital: let the media do their job - 2 Jul 2013
The fine art of telling 'national importance' from damp squib - 13 Feb 2012

Press freedom as the ANC sees it - 1 Feb 2012

Zuma's Monday Massacre and the importance of free media - 26 Oct 2011

View my profile and articles...

For more, visit: https://www.bizcommunity.com