

Windows 10 to be free upgrade

According to IT-Online, Microsoft will make Windows 10 available as a free upgrade to customers who upgrade in the first year that the upcoming operating system is available. This will apply to users who run Windows 7, Windows 8.1 and Windows Phone 8.1.

Microsoft recently unveiled its new generation of Windows, with a wide range of experiences designed to usher in a new era of more personal computing, as well as two new devices designed to extend the Windows experience from large screens to no screens.

Windows 10 will be delivered as a service to offer a safer, innovative and updated experience for the supported lifetime of the device.

"Windows 10 marks the beginning of the more personal computing era in the mobile-first, cloud-first world," says Satya Nadella, CEO of Microsoft. "Our ambition is for the 1,5-billion people who are using Windows today to fall in love with Windows 10 and for billions more to decide to make Windows home."
