

'I'm Bored' app now available on Apple

The event and service platform 'I'm Bored' is now available on iOS operating systems on Apple products, allowing users to join the fun and be up to date with what is happening in their neighbourhood when it comes to family friendly events and services.

'I'm Bored' was launched in 2014 as a result of Lorraine Steyn and her then 11-year old son's experience sailing adventure in the Mediterranean. It has since grown to welcome tens of thousands of families across the country - Cape Town, Johannesburg & Pretoria, Durban as well as Bloemfontein. Originally operating on website, newsletter and an in-Facebook app, the demand grew to embrace an Android app, developed in-house at KRS - a pioneering software development firm, founded 29 years ago by Steyn, now its simplifier-in-chief.

The app is available free on the Apple iStore.
