

Ugandan minister: Africa needs to harness mobile tech

Africa needs to devise ways to harness mobile technology, considering the explosive growth the technology and services have had on the continent, Uganda's minister of ICT has said.

Africa today is considered the new growth market for mobile telephony. Despite the fact that operators on the continent bag millions of dollars in profit and phones seem to ring in everyone's pockets, there is still huge potential given that penetration stands at 18%.

Read the full article here.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>