

Commission seeks heftier Telkom fine

 By Craig Wilson

14 Sep 2012

Not only is Telkom appealing against the Competition Tribunal's ruling that found the fixed-line operator guilty of anticompetitive behaviour, but now the Competition Commission has filed a "cross appeal" against sections of the tribunal's findings and wants Telkom to face a higher penalty than the R449m the tribunal imposed in August.

The commission appears to believe that it proved the conditions for a conviction on grounds other than those the tribunal found and that the tribunal should have taken other mitigating circumstances into consideration in its ruling and in setting the fine imposed on Telkom.

The original penalty proposed by the commission was in excess of R3bn. It still wants a fine of that magnitude imposed and says the tribunal erred in setting the penalty as low as it did.

Read the full article on www.techcentral.co.za.

ABOUT CRAIG WILSON

Craig Wilson is an ICT journalist and speaker based in Johannesburg. He is deputy editor at TechCentral, the South African source for technology news, reviews and opinion, and regularly provides insight into the technology industry for radio and television. Email him at craig@techcentral.co.za, follow @craigwilson on Twitter and connect on LinkedIn.

- Fibre player Glaxo headed SA's way - 2 Jul 2013
- Why 2G is Africa's mobile future - 5 Jun 2013
- Safaricom to ditch feature phones - 25 Feb 2013
- Google: Kenya may be Africa's tech leader - 28 Jan 2013
- $14,5bn tech city to rise in Kenya - 18 Jan 2013

View my profile and articles...

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>