

Pastoll for international advertising jury

Joey Pastoll, one of the founding directors of creative solutions agency, Cross Colours, has been selected once again as a jury member for the design category of the London International Advertising Awards. This year marks the 20th Annual London International Awards and winners will be announced at a ceremony to be held in November. "It is extremely interesting to judge work from around the world and to see how the design work in South Africa compares. It is certainly an honour to be selected as a jury member once again," says Pastoll.
