

Nott appointed as director at Norton Rose Fulbright

Greg Nott has been appointed as head of Norton Rose Fulbright's Africa practice in South Africa. Nott's appointment is the latest in a series of strategic steps in line with the practice's plans to develop new relationships and markets on the African continent.

Nott is highly regarded in the energy and natural resources sector. He was most recently a director at a national law firm where he was head of the Africa practice and was a member of the management committee of Lex Africa. He has served as vice president of the National Association of Democratic Lawyers working with prominent legal maven, past Minister of Justice Dullah Omar and Justice Pius Langa.

"We are delighted to welcome Greg to our team. He is well-known to many of our existing clients and has acted for some of them. His knowledge of our key sectors complement our existing resource and he brings added strength to our leading practice," Rob Otty, managing director of Norton Rose Fulbright in South Africa, commented.

"I am pleased to join a top three global elite legal practice with an excellent reputation for delivering on some of the biggest mandates in Africa," Nott said.

"The existing legal team provides a strong foundation for our growth plans of the practice on the continent. I look forward to working with all at Norton Rose Fulbright and to the opportunity to continue building the practice and the broader firm."
