

Commvault, Google Cloud partner up

Commvault and Google Cloud have partnered to provide a range of cloud services available on the Google Cloud platform. The new partnership will be focused on at the Commvault GO customer event and Google executive Adam Massey will explain how this new relationship addresses the increasing need for data protection for multi-cloud, hybrid IT environments.

By supporting all four Google Cloud Platform storage classes for content repositories, Commvault will help customers optimise their cloud investments by enabling them to achieve the right balance between access and cost economics of data storage.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>